DEPARTMENT OF STATE

WASHINGTON

Dear Mr. Dulles:

I take pleasure in sending you a copy of a recent Department of State publication entitled "The Foreign Service of the United States; Origins, Development, and Functions".

This account of an important arm of our Government has been prepared in the Department's Historical Office by two Foreign Service officers of long experience, who have had the benefit of advice and suggestions from a number of senior officers of the Department and the Foreign Service. I feel that, apart from its general public interest, it will be of value to departments and agencies of the Government which send personnel to foreign countries or have close working relations with the Department of State or the Foreign Service.

The book is being placed on public sale by the Superintendent of Documents.

Sincerely yours,

For the Secretary of State:

Roger Tubby
Assistant Secretary

Enclosure:

Book.

The Honorable
Allen W. Dulles,
Director, Central Intelligence Agency.
